Finance director quits

Ralph Cowen, director of the Carmel city finance department for two years, will resign effective Feb. 1. His successor is Douglas D. Peterson, assistant finance director in Salem, Ore. Peterson once was a student under City Administrator Jack Collins when Collins taught at an Oregon university. Page 2.

Flood scare in Valley

Heavy rain over the weekend led to a flood scare Monday along the Carmel River. As a precaution against flooding, school children were sent home early and many homeowners along the river stacked up sandbags. The fury of the storm sent waves crashing against seawalls along the coast. On Sunday, a 100-foot section in Carmel came tumbling down. Page 3.

Arson suspected in bar fire

Fire investigators say an arsonist is to blame for the fire Saturday morning at a bar on Ocean Avenue. It caused about $2,000 worth of damage. Authorities have one clue that might lead them to an arrest. Page 3.

Pool financing eyed

After tallying results of a poll, the Carmel City Council has decided to pursue construction of a public swimming pool in town. A companion proposal, explained in the November mail poll, called for construction of a $2.5 million recreation facility. It proved less popular than the pool. Page 6.

'The Knack' knocked

Drama critic Barbara Mountray found the Barnyard Theatre production of "The Knack" hard to swallow. "The fault lies primarily with the play, which is dated and, in places, offensive," she reports. Page 14.

Delay on athletic field

A shipment of $22,000 worth of outdoor lights is late and so dedication of the Art Holman Memorial Field also must be delayed. The north field at Sunset Center was renamed for the late Holman, once a teacher at the former Sunset School, earlier this month. Page 16.

A move to revive the Carmel Police Reserve program was shelved in January by the Carmel City Council. The risk of a lawsuit stemming from a volunteer's police work could be too costly for the city, the councilmen were told. Page 36.

PLAY WAS scheduled to open this morning in Pebble Beach at the 37th annual Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Championship and much was the same. Galleries looked like Klan meetings with the cardboard periscopes raised high, the better to see golf's celebrities. Jack Nicklaus, three-time Crosby winner, started his first round. And the awesome view of the coast, like the one pictured below at Spyglass Hill, will beam coast-to-coast on network television this weekend. All was much the same. One thing was different, however. Bing was gone. Stories about the tournament and the pairings are inside.

Letters

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Took courage

Dear Editor:

I just got my Jan. 5 edition of the Pine Cone and have now forced myself to write you the note I've wanted to write since I began getting the paper last November.

You've done a superb job of making a tired paper an exciting one. It is now insightful, thorough and, especially since this edition, courageous.

The reference "courageous" refers to your editorial on the in-lieu parking machinations. For a local paper to editorialize on an issue in apparent opposition to the feelings of the majority of its readership is either crazy or courageous (or both). The old Pine Cone would never have taken such a chance.

The whole issue of making Carmel an enclave closed to all but those fortunate enough to live within its boundaries (the larger issue of which the in-lieu parking proposal is but a part) is so absurd as to be truly comical. From this distance, reading of the various seriously considered proposals to realize the "Norberg" Carmel causes me to shake my head.

It is critical, of course, for a community with pride to control and direct change to preserve those characteristics that are the source of that pride. It requires, in order to be successful, an understanding of the dynamics of change and a vision of how the community can accommodate itself to change while enhancing its desirable qualities. To resist all change, especially to attempt to recapture a romantic past unobtainable in the present, is not only unreal, but ineffective.

Wrong impression

Dear Editor:

I wish to correct my letter of Jan. 12 in the Pine Cone. The shortened published letter gave the impression that the "no-fault" insurance plan proposed by the insurance companies was the state compensation type plan that I was proposing as an alternative. Thus, the letter I had intended as a very strong criticism of the "no-fault" plan turned out to be a ringing endorsement of it.

Gratifying news

Dear Editor:

It is gratifying to read in the Pine Cone (Jan. 5) that both Supervisor Sam Farr and County Planning Director Ed De Mars consider growth management policies and revision of the county General Plan important programs to be carried out in the coming year. These related endeavors involve a fresh look at county planning policies and practices to reflect changed conditions and environmental concerns, and to comply with state requirements.

It is clear from the record of the past year that a strong show of voter support is needed if progress is to be made with this effort. The people of the Monterey Peninsula area are capable of being aroused to action on issues which touch them closely. This was demonstrated by the large turnout at the public forum on plans for expansion of the Carmel Sanitary District sewage treatment plant and sewer system. On that occasion, members of the public expressed alarm at the projected population increase on which plans would be based. Another recent example of public response was the Trilon proposal.

A similar expression of opinion has not been heard from the general public on the need for better control of the amount and location of development, which affect the quality of life for residents. An opportunity to speak up on this subject will be afforded by a Board of Supervisors hearing at the county courthouse in Salinas next Tuesday at 1 p.m. At that time, the supervisors will consider adopting policies recommended by the County Planning Commission which will serve as a basis for revision of the county General Plan. These policies constitute a statement by county government as to how development should be regulated so that the environment is protected and such problems as water supply and traffic are not aggravated.

Every Peninsula resident can see in his own neighborhood and throughout the area the consequences of rapid growth. If this is a matter of concern to you, attend the hearing on Tuesday or write to the Board of Supervisors.

Endorsements

Dear Editor:

I wish to speak in support of my close friend Howard Brunn, who is running for a seat on the City Council.

At last the voters of the village have the opportunity to seat a true "Carmelite" on the City Council.

Here is a man who has called Carmel home for more than 50 years — a man who knows what the village needs to retain what's left of its old charm.

The informed voter will support Howard Brunn.

Berley Farber
Monterey

Dear Editor:

We were individually pleased when Howard Brunn decided to run for election to the Carmel City Council, especially so because Howard grew up in Carmel and, after World War II service in the U.S. Air Force, chose to return to his hometown. Now he desires to do more for Carmel than he previously has been able while pursuing a successful business career. Whatever his business, presently the Carmel Bay Company, he has maintained high standards. A former president of the Carmel Business Association, he has great concern for citizens and business people alike, and we know he would have us all move together without prejudice for the good of Carmel.

We believe he will be forward looking and instead of waiting for crises, he would act. Howard also is a warm and generous friend as well as a good citizen, and he has deep roots in the community which he wishes to serve.

Marjory Lloyd
Frank Lloyd
Carmel

Dear Editor:

My wife and I, having been raised in Carmel, decided to return to the Peninsula with our children and open our own business.

I had known Howard Brunn's partner Barney Scollan in Sacramento and contacted him for advice. Howard, Barney and I had many discussions about what to do with my location on Sixth Avenue, between San Carlos and Dolores Streets. Howard's conclusion was to conduct a business that renders to the needs of our local citizens in Carmel.

After researching many ideas, Howard emerged with the concept of a fish market and oyster bar. Howard suggested that if I was going to do a business oriented to the local resident I ought to do it right. Through Howard, I was introduced to Kipp Stewart, a well-known local artist and designer. The Flaherty's Fish Market and Oyster Bar that you see today is the result of much input from Howard, Kipp and others sensitive to the needs of our village.

I am pleased to be among those to support Howard Brunn in the March elections for City Council member of Carmel-by-the-Sea. As a recently elected member of the board of directors for the Carmel Business Association, I feel that Howard Brunn can meet the needs of our business community and of our local citizens in Carmel. If our village is going to continue to attract the quality overnight visitor and remain the most wonderful spot to raise a family in the entire world, we definitely need folks like Howard Brunn in charge.

Top fiscal officer at City Hall quits; successor already hired

RALPH COWEN, the top fiscal officer in the Carmel city administration, has announced that he will resign as finance director on Feb. 1. Cowen, 51, held the post for two years.

He will be replaced by Douglas D. Peterson, 27, the assistant finance director in Salem, Ore., a university city of 68,000.

Cowen's resignation comes in the wake of a restructuring in the finance department.

Jack Collins, the city administrator, hired Peterson last week. He once was a student of Collins's when the city administrator taught at the University of Oregon in Eugene, Ore.

Peterson, a bachelor, has been the assistant finance officer in Salem since January 1973. His salary here will be $22,824, the same amount Cowen received.

Two of his chief responsibilities in Salem were the city's budget and the administration of hostelry taxes.

Contacted at his office in Salem, Peterson said, "This job is a real opportunity for my own professional advancement."

Peterson also will assume the duties of assistant city administrator, Collins said. Cowen had worked for the city since 1969. He was hired as the assistant city administrator, then appointed city finance director by the City Council in 1976.

WHEN THE City Council adopted the $2.7 million budget in August for fiscal year 1977-78, Collins expressed embarrassment about the budget's form and apologized to the lawmakers.

"It will never be this way again," Collins, then just two weeks in his job here, told the City Council.

Collins did not blame Cowen for the budget problems. Both Cowen and Collins said the resignation was voluntary.

"I am sorry to see Ralph leave. He has been a loyal city employee for years," commented Collins.

IN A BRIEF letter to Collins, dated on Jan. 6, Cowen said, "I will retire from the city of Carmel. It has been interesting serving the city and I wish you the best of luck in the future."

Cowen gave no reason for his departure. Cowen said he has "no plans" after Feb. 1, although he did say he was considering other job offers. He lives in Carmel with his wife and son.

When Cowen came here more than eight years ago, the city budget was about one-third the size it is now. Two years ago the city computerized its accounting system, Cowen said.

"It was either go to the computer or hire two or three more people," Cowen remarked.

THE CITY finance department currently has two employees — the finance officer and one assistant. Karen Love, the assistant, has worked there since 1969.

But the department is midway through a

Resignation, not ouster, officials say restructuring sought by Haskins and Sells, the firm that audited the city's expenses for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

In a report to the City Council on Sept. 6, the firm suggested hiring a third finance department worker to improve accounting functions.

The third employee suggested in the report has not been hired yet, but the City Council approved the additional salary at its Jan. 3 meeting. Collins and Peterson will hire the third employee by Feb. 1, Collins said.

The Haskins and Sells report indicated no wrongdoing in its audit, but it pointed to immediate problems in the city's finance department which would require attention from a third employee.

Cowen said there are no problems, however, and that the city is in good financial shape. "We are taking in more money than we are spending," he said.

Auditors told to continue study

The accounting firm that filed an audit critical of Carmel city finance procedures in November has been hired by the City Council to further investigate its findings.

Haskins and Sells, of Salinas, was granted another $5,000 to continue its audit assistance to the city. The council decision was made Jan. 3.

The firm has been asked to review accounting procedures at Sunset Center, audit the city's transient lodging tax and investigate changes in the municipal finance department.

All the reports are due by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg, who has voted against any expansion of the City Hall staff, voted for the measure. It provides for the hiring of a third employee in the Finance Department.

"I am reluctant to vote for this, but I think it will be worthwhile," Norberg said.

The transient lodging tax is a 6 per cent levy on receipts from the 52 hotels and motels in Carmel. Revenue from the tax amounted to $468,000 in fiscal year 1976-77. Five motels, selected at random, will be audited by Haskins and Sells.

The spot audit is necessary under the city code. No audits have been done in the past few years because of a lack of personnel, Ralph Cowen, the outgoing finance director, said.

Finally, Haskins and Sells will offer "informal consultation" through March in the reorganization of the city's Finance Department.

Arson suspected in bar fire on Saturday

Investigators said Tuesday that the fire that destroyed part of a bar on Ocean Avenue Saturday morning was deliberately set.

"Whoever started the fire was no stranger to the premises," said Vern Allred, assistant chief of the Carmel Fire Department. Both the police and fire departments are questioning individuals, but no arrest has been made.

behind at the scene was sent to Salinas, where it will be examined for fingerprints by the state Justice Department. Allred said he expected to hear the outcome of the test today.

The blaze broke out at 6:02 a.m. at Sade's bar, Ocean near Monte Verde. It caused an estimated $2,000 in damage. Eleven firefighters were called and they put out the blaze in five minutes.

The bar was empty at the time and no one was injured. Sergeant Thomas Frazier of the Carmel Police Department was the first to the scene and he contained the fire using a portable extinguisher. The bar owner, Thomas Enea, said he left the bar at 2:25 a.m. Saturday morning.

Allred said the arsonist is believed to have poured gasoline from the container over the door at the back of the bar. The suspect ignited the fuel and fled, leaving the container behind.

Police said witnesses at the scene told them they heard footsteps after the fire became visible.

Allred said the state Justice Department is not involved in the case, but that it has the only criminology laboratory in the area.

Accused rapist will start trial Monday in Superior Court

A jury trial has been scheduled to begin Monday in Monterey Superior Court at 9:30 a.m. for the 19-year-old Seaside man accused of the Dec. 3 rape and robbery of a woman in Carmel.

Michael Lee Williams, of 1103 Sonoma Ave., will stand trial on charges of kidnap, kidnap with bodily injury, robbery and forcible rape, according to Dean Flippo of the district attorney's office.

A 17-year-old alleged accomplice, also from Seaside, was turned over to the California Youth Authority (CYA) following a preliminary hearing Dec. 28 in the county juvenile hall.

The youth will undergo diagnosis through January at the CYA clinic in Perkins, near Sacramento. He then will be sent to a detention home somewhere in California, according to authorities at juvenile hall in Salinas.

Cajun bash being organized

If you are from Louisiana, your presence and vittles are eagerly sought for the third annual Mardi Gras Ball and Cajun Cook-off.

The all-day potluck is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 5, at a location yet to be decided. Mardi Gras beads will be given out and an abundance of good food is expected. Last year's menu included eggplant jambalaya, chicken gumbo, red beans and rice, seafood creole, black-eyed peas and praline cake. More than 50 persons came to eat, drink, dance and play guitars.

If you are interested in attending this year, phone Stefani at 624-3086.

Registration drive on Sunday

A door-to-door voter registration drive is scheduled all day Sunday under the auspices of Old Carmel, the local residents' lobby.

Deputy registrars will visit local homes and offer to sign up adults before the Feb. 6 registration deadline. A municipal election involving three seats on the Carmel City Council is scheduled on March 7.

Persons who wish to register can call 624-8000 to leave their name and address.

Downpours start flood scare

HEAVY AND continuous rainfall over the weekend put the drought on its knees and homeowners on flood alert Monday along the Carmel River.

Although Tuesday dawned clear and sunny, Loran Bunte, director of the Monterey County Flood Control District, said additional rain could bring trouble. "It doesn't look too good. Everything is so damn wet on the watersheds the water just rolls right down."

The river swelled to the brim of its banks Monday afternoon. At Los Padres Dam, the headwaters for the once-dry river, 5.16 inches of rain fell during a 72-hour period ending Monday at 8 a.m.

As the river's flow picked up speed Monday, bus drivers began taking children home early on orders from the superintendent of Carmel Unified School District. Superintendent Harris A. Taylor, told that the river would crest in the early afternoon, said he decided to send the children home early to "be on the safe side."

Taylor said he feared the heavy rains might have caused spot flooding, thus cutting off roads the school buses travel. About 75 per cent of the 3,000 students in the district ride buses.

All of the children had left school by 2:15 p.m., Taylor said. No mishaps were reported.

At the tiny Captain Cooper School in Big Sur, one of the district's seven campuses, only four children could make it to class Monday because of the torrential rains. The normal enrollment there is 70.

HUNKS OF stone and concrete were all that remained of a 14-by-100-foot seawall erected three years ago along Scenic Road, at the foot of 13th Avenue, in Carmel. High waves pushed by gale-force winds cracked the seawall in two places and Sunday it fell into the swirling surf.

Bill Askew, director of public works in Carmel, said Tuesday that his crews would attempt to repair the wall once the tide had subsided. Waves have cut a cavity at the foot of the cliff and Askew said he plans to push boulders in the hole to protect Scenic Road.

A total of 2.71 inches of rain fell on Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Carmel Public Works Department on Junipero Avenue.

THE CARMEL River reached its crest Monday at 1:30 p.m., said Bunte, of the county flood control district. The water level rose to 10 feet at the measuring station situated at the foot of the Robles Bridge in Mid-Valley. The bridge, part of Esquiline Road, was not closed, but early reports had it that the bridge had been flooded.

"I've been here for 39 years and I've never seen the water reach our door yet," he said over the telephone Monday. "There's a big crowd out here watching the river, but that's about all."

Tuesday the skies cleared and school resumed.

"They told us there was no problem," Taylor said then, referring to the county flood control district. "Now if there is a deluge, that will change, but right now there is just a light drizzle."

Public works crews had stood vigils near bridges over the Carmel River. Some used rappelling hooks to remove logs and debris that caught under the Robles Bridge. At 10:30 p.m. on Monday, state highway maintenance workers extricated a 35-foot tree trunk from the Highway 1 bridge over Carmel River, said Gary Saunders, highway maintenance supervisor in Salinas.

Recreation poll prompts push for public-funded swimming pool

A POLL ABOUT recreation facilities, mailed in November to the 5,081 post office box holders in Carmel, generated less than a 13 per cent response. But the results yielded sufficient information for the Carmel City Council to start considering the construction of a public swimming pool.

Of the 641 persons who returned the poll, 327 favored the addition of a pool. They rejected a suggested $2.5 million recreation facility, however, by a vote of 337 to 304.

As a result, the City Council has asked the ad hoc committee that suggested the facility to study ways of financing a public pool somewhere in Carmel.

A number of respondents who said they would not support a recreation facility noted that they would like a swimming pool.

The original proposal called for the following facilities, all of which have been scrapped by the City Council because of the low numbers of favorable results received:

Gymnasium, 165 (favorable votes); weight room, 157; exercise rooms, 156; racquetball courts, 132; and tennis courts, 12.

FAVORABLE COMMENTS listed several reasons why the facility should be built. They praised the idea because it would encourage healthy activities for children, provide therapy for Carmel's senior citizens and fitness programs for men and women.

Those who opposed construction of the facility said it would bring more traffic, be incompatible with the Sunset Center and R-1 zone and be an improper use of hostelry money if it was used to underwrite the construction of the facility.

A number of swimming pool backers favored the concept of a therapeutic pool for the elderly.

It is still undecided whether the proposed pool would be indoors or outdoors. The location also is uncertain. Along with City Administrator Jack Collins, the ad hoc committee and its chairman, Richard Tyler, the director of Sunset Center, is to make recommendations to the City Council.

Committee members include Helen Arnold, a councilman; Dr. Donald Davidson, a planning commissioner; Robert Stephenson, a planning commissioner; William Doolittle, investment counselor; Bill Askew, public works superintendent; Ken White, athletic director at Monterey High School; Hugh Smith, a forestry commissioner; Bernard Van Horne, a cultural commissioner; Fred Cunningham, the city building inspector; and Bob Griggs, the city planning director.

The committee has scheduled a meeting on Friday, Jan. 27, at 4 p.m. at Sunset Center. The City Council did not specify a date for the committee to return with its recommendations.

Film about Picasso to be screened today

Picasso, a film about the artist's life, his work and his friends, will be shown at the Brown Bag Cinema program Thursday, Jan. 19, at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

The film biography traces Picasso's life from his early days in Spain to his 90th birthday, with special emphasis on the basic themes in his works.

The popular community program, presented the third Thursday of each month, is open to all residents and visitors at no charge. Guests bring their lunch; coffee is provided by Sunset Center. Lunch and conversations are shared from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., when the film portion of the afternoon begins in the Sunset Theater.

Part two of taster's list of good, inexpensive wines

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

A TELEPHONE switchboard operator, a taxi driver, an airline stewardess and a Wall Street lawyer are among the many ho have, usually sotto voce, thanked me for recommending Gallo Hearty Burgundy, in print, years ago. It's still one of the best values in red wine in America.

Good wine for daily table service at affordable prices has always been a primary quest in the wine game. As mentioned here last week, more and more good examples will be coming to market as California's extended varietal acreage comes into the mature bearing years. It is to be hoped that this affordable bonanza derived from good grapes and even greater know-how will be properly appreciated in all quarters and not subjected to the carping restrictions of snobbism. Our indigenous bounty of daily table wine supply, which is far from "ordinary," merits a cheering section.

The Wine Connoisseur

Before citing a few more good examples of fine-value daily red and white table wines, it's perhaps prudent to put to rest the bothersome question of relative dryness and residual sweetness. There is a measure of residual grape sugar in all table wines, even those crisp and seemingly bone-dry vintages of Chablis and Chardonnay from both France and California.

IN THE WET laboratory of your own mouth, a positive indication of sweetness begins when the wine has but 1 per cent residual grape sugar. Below this threshold, with even 0.5 per cent residual sugar, it is correct and proper to refer to the wine as being "dry." This edge of sweetness can often be a part of the wine's seductive charms, and does not stand in the way of a delightful harmony with oysters, shellfish or poultry to the sophisticated winebibber.

Only among those who "talk dry and drink sweet" is there the constant phony argument about sweetness. True, many cheap wines, including some of famous European regions, have their flaws and flabbiness masked with overriding sweetness. The cover-up is about as subtle as theatrical makeup and fools only the most naive.

Sweetness in white wines can be luscious, noble and thoroughly enchanting — even costly when one thinks of the Botrytis-affected Sauternes of Chateau Yquem, or trockenbeerenauslese editions of great Rhines and Moselweins, or the golden-rich Botrytis Sauvignon Blanc of the Monterey Vineyard. There are many, many more collectors' items, even among red wines like late harvest Zinfandels, where a small quotient of residual sweetness is of the most respectable presence. It is a wine's harmony with food and the taste preference of whoever is to enjoy it that matters.

AND NOW TO some of those good daily table wines of current distribution:

• Geyser Peak Winery of Sonoma County is one of the leaders in pioneering the packaging of wine in cardboard box containers. Immensely popular in Australia, the idea has not reached its stride in the U.S., but the Geyser Peak Winery offers its Summit Burgundy, Chablis, Rhine and Vin Rose in "Winesellar" one-gallon ($5.79) and three-gallon ($15) boxes. Both of these will fit neatly into a home refrigerator, have plastic inner liners which, from filling under vacuum, prevent oxidation of the wine as it is withdrawn. The wine remains fresh, clean and bright for weeks. You can enjoy the convenience of this nonbreakable contained wine in your RV or home, on picnics, boats, backpacks, whatever. The Chablis is clean, crisp and relatively dry. The Burgundy is dry, smooth and a good, deep ruby. The Rhine and Rose are detectably on the sweeter side. If you haven't tried one of these, take home a gallon of the Chablis, put it in the refrigerator, draw your first glass — maybe a month later, your last. For the pennies it costs, you'll be glad you found it.

• At the big All-American Wine Competition judged in Washington, D.C., last October, precious few medals were awarded to the 836 wines submitted. But Giumarra Vineyards, of Edison, received 10 awards, notably for its Barbera and Chenin Blanc. We've long had an appreciation of the Giumarra Zinfandel. Any of these three wines is a good buy at $1.99 per fifth, or $3.29 for a half-gallon. The Chenin Blanc is flowery and rich, fruity and mouth-filling in taste, an ideal wine to serve chilled for the chicken-in-the-pot Sunday supper.

Africa film at Sunset

Africa: Beyond the Zambezi, one of a series of Explorama travel-adventure films, will be screened at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel, Thursday and Friday, Jan. 19-20, at 8:15 p.m.

Explorer Ron Shanin will narrate the feature-length color film, based on his four-year expedition to the remote regions of Africa. Highlights of the film include a segment in which Shanin shows tiny Bambutti pygmies of Zaire how to milk a spitting cobra of its venom and put the poison on their arrowheads in place of the slower-acting vegetable poison they had been using. The film also shows Shanin's encounters with a shy and elusive tribe living in the Zambezi Valley of central Africa. Members of the tribe, called the Wadoma, have only two toes on each foot.

Shanin, a naturalist who works with African wildlife, has spent more than 10 years living alone in remote regions of Africa. He took all of the film footage himself except those segments in which he appears.

He says he went to Africa to experiment with wild animals and their behavior patterns in their natural environment. "My most interesting experiments were with two fledgling African black eagles that I raised as pets," he said. "In the beginning of the film, the birds are very small. By the end of the film, the birds are fully grown with a wing span of more than ten feet. The reaction of these wild birds to a human was absolutely fascinating."

Shanin was a flight engineer with Pan American Airways for six years, then a commercial pilot and flight instructor.

FORMER PRESIDENT GERALD FORD, called the most famous golfer who never broke 80, will return for his second year as an amateur player in the Crosby Pro-Am in Pebble Beach. He is expected to play with Arnold Palmer, as he did last year. (William C. Brooks photo)

Fun for some, for others it means $225,000

Although the Bing Crosby Pro-Am is a fun occasion, it is a very serious matter for the participants. Not only is $225,000 at stake, but the players, like other human beings, want to be at their best.

So, good gallery manners are important.

A number one rule is not to seek golfers' autographs during the contest. Another major courtesy is to keep quiet and remain stationary during play — golf demands concentration by players.

The same courtesy and discretion applies to snapping pictures and conspicuously waving hats, handkerchiefs or scarves. Also, spectators should not walk on the greens or in sand traps.

For spectators' own protection, they should stay behind roped-off areas; never obstruct a player's shot; and follow the golf marshals' directions. A golf ball is small, but hit with force and traveling at high speed, it can cause serious injury.

JOHNNY MILLER, shown here preparing for a putt and defending himself against the rain, will be on hand to vie for a share of the $225,000 purse in the 1978 Crosby Clambake. Miller won the Clambake in 1974 and lost to Jack Nicklaus in a playoff in 1972.

The greatest show in golf

The greatest show in golf, the 37th Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur Golf Championship, will be played Thursday-Sunday, Jan. 19-22, over three superb golf courses in Pebble Beach.

The late Bing Crosby's son, 16-year-old Nathaniel, has taken over sponsorship of the first Crosby Clambake since his father's death. The tournament will be managed by Dan Searle and a staff of more than 400 workers, many of whom have been with the event since it was first played on the Monterey Peninsula in the spring of 1947.

Joining the amateur ranks this year for the second time will be former President Gerald Ford, as well as a long list of celebrities, including Johnny Bench, George Blanda, Pappy Boyington, Glen Campbell, Vic Damone, Mac Davis, Clint Eastwood, Rollie Fingers, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Bob Newhart, George C. Scott, Alan Shepard, Lawrence Welk, Andy Williams, Efreim Zimbalist Jr., Willy Mays, Billy Kilmer, John Brodie and Charles Schulz.

The amateur ranks also include four women: Lulong Hartley, World Junior Golf Champ; Bari Brandwynne; Beth Daniel, Women's Amateur Champion; and Marquesa de Artasoma, Spanish Amateur Golf Champion, of Madrid, Spain.

The Clambake, for a purse of $225,000, will be played over Spyglass Hill, Pebble Beach and Cypress Point courses.

The tournament is played over four days, with 18 holes of play each day. Foursomes tee off beginning at 7:15 a.m. and at eight-minute intervals thereafter. There are 168 professionals and 168 amateur partners, paired in foursomes.

The three-way field rotates Thursday, Friday and Saturday over Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hills. Players start from the first and tenth tees on all three courses.

On Sunday the 30 low teams and 60 low professionals play Pebble Beach. The Crosby is the only PGA-sponsored tournament in which the amateurs play right through to the 18th-hole finish on Sunday. Saturday and Sunday play will be broadcast over ABC television.

Tom Watson, who won the record-breaking 36th Bing Crosby Pro-Am by one stroke, is expected to return to defend his title against such competition as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Hale Irwin, Bruce Leitzke, Ray Floyd, Tom Weiskopf and Ben Crenshaw. The 27-year-old Stanford graduate shot a one under par 71 for a 273 total, a new 72-hole record and the first prize of $40,000.

The biggest gallery in the history of the tournament was on hand for the finish last year, with approximately 28,000 spectators Saturday and a total four-day attendance of 78,500.

Admission is $10. A season ticket is $35 and serviceman/student tickets for the four days of tournament play are $10.

Proceeds from ticket sales and the sale of programs at $2 go to nonprofit organizations, with the accent on youth groups and student loan funds. Other recipients have been hospitals, ethnic organizations and groups aiding the handicapped. More than $3 million has been distributed over the years.

One of the unique aspects of the Crosby is the corps of hundreds of volunteers who donate thousands of unpaid hours to bring off the event. These include the marshals who keep order, the doctors and nurses who stand by to give emergency treatment to players or spectators when needed and many more, who undertake the staggering preparations and do the cleaning up afterward.

Crosby tickets are available at Macy's, Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey; the Ticketron outlet in Roos-Atkins, Del Monte Shopping Center; the BASS outlet at Pacific Stereo, 552 Fremont Blvd., Monterey; at all Pebble Beach gates; or at any golf pro shop on the Monterey Peninsula.

For additional information, phone 624-0100.

COMEDIAN BOB NEWHART, an avid golfer, will be one of the 168 amateurs in the 37th Crosby Clambake this weekend at Pebble Beach. Newhart, with a 10 handicap, had long been a regular at the Clambake, but because of the success of his "Bob Newhart Show" on television, he has not been able to play since 1975. (William C. Know the jargon

If you're one of the ticket holders at the 37th annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship, perhaps the language of golf is as familiar to you as classical Mandarin. Here are some of the common terms of the game:

- Ace: a hole in one.
- Away: the ball farthest from the hole, which will be the next to be played.
- Best-ball: commonly used for a four-ball match, when two partners use only the better of their scores on each hole.
- Birdie: one stroke under par for a hole.
- Blast: to explode a shot out of a sand trap.
- Bogie: one stroke above par for a hole.
- Bunker: a sand trap, a depression forming a hazard for the player.
- Divot: clump of sod cut away by a golf club.
- Down: the number of holes a player or partners are behind their opponent. The opposite is "up," or holes ahead.
- Eagle: Two strokes under par.
- Fore: a warning cry to any who might be in range of a ball being played.
- Gross score: score before handicap is deducted.
- Hole out: finish putting.
- Honor: the privilege of playing first, which goes to the low scorer on the preceding hole.

Plastic art on display at Santa Catalina

New Dimensions in Plastics, a show of art works in sheet acrylic and plastic by Jean Wilsdon-Brenner and Barbara Blevens, will open with an artists' reception Friday, Jan. 20, 7-9 p.m., at the Sister Mary Kieran Library at Santa Catalina School, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey. The show will remain on view through Feb. 6.

Miss Wilsdon-Brenner, of Carmel, will show the first results of her experiments with sheet acrylics, which she calls sheet acrylic reliefs. "In several pieces," she says, "I have tried to combine a geometric background with the organic forms of nature. I have also included in this exhibit some contour drawings on sheet acrylic."

She studied at Stanford, the Sorbonne in Paris and Sacramento State College. Her work has been exhibited in several one-woman shows and she won first place in sculpture at the Monterey County Fair in 1972 and third place in watercolor at the 1968 fair.

Mrs. Blevens, who lives in Carmel Valley, studied at the University of Oregon, Oregon State University, Monterey Peninsula College and the University of Tennessee. After a trip to Finland to study and photograph the country's architecture, she says, "I returned with many feelings that could not be expressed through slides. Therefore, I selected the medium of plastic to communicate in color and words my concepts of Finland today."

Mrs. Blevens won third place in needlepoint at the 1976 Creative Needle Exhibition sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m.-9 p.m. weekdays. For more information, phone 624-8851 or 659-4230.

More remarkable pianists visit the Peninsula

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

IF BORIS BLOCH's spectacular recital last week at Monterey Peninsula College was the last official program in the college's Festival of Piano Music, the fact of truly outstanding piano playing there belies it. Bloch's concert was the real shift into the major league and now Istvan Nadas is carrying forth with what already appears to be a keyboard series of such quality and quantity as to make us forget completely most of the festival.

At this printing, Nadas already has given the second of seven concerts devoted to the complete 32 sonatas by Beethoven. The seven programs are presenting four or five sonatas each, grouped, at the discretion of the pianist, out of compositional sequence. In his time, Beethoven dominated most of the musical forms in which he worked, but none so totally as the symphony, the string quartet and the piano sonata. The 32 piano sonatas form an incredibly rich literature whose challenge goes beyond pianism and musicianship to the spiritual depth of its visionary creator. This is not to suggest, however, that the pianistic and musical challenge is less than enormous. From virtually all contemporary accounts, Beethoven was the greatest pianist of his generation, until composition became more important to him and deafness more isolating. As the second Wednesday night concert by Nadas was given after our deadline, the following comments relate to the program of Jan. 11.

That an artist prefers to include the title "Dr." with his name has always struck me as odd. The only suggestion that comes to my mind by its use is that the artist is, among whatever else, an academician. But this Hungarian scholar, Nadas, displays an artistry that completely eclipses the academy. Nadas clearly is an artistic master of both the literature and the keyboard. For all the scintillating pianism of the young Bloch, Nadas was the greater master of the Avery Tompkins Steinway, expressing a splendid evenness and richness of tone, and bright and consistent clarity and articulation.

Nadas's opening program included the first and third of Beethoven's sonatas, Op. 2, Nos. 1 and 3. These works, similar to Op. 1 piano trios, were composed with Haydn in mind. In the program's order, these two were separated by the Sonata in D, Op. 10, No. 3 (a better known work) and the famous Moonlight Sonata.

There was not a weak movement in any of these works nor will any be found in the remaining concerts. Nadas proved, right from the start, that he was the man for this music. A bold authority and strong musicality marked the syncopated opening allegro of the Op. 2, No. 1. It is significant that this work is in F minor. The important minor key works of the latter 18th century are few and far between. Here is Beethoven fearlessly expressing his ideas in a style that marks his entire career. In this work, further, he displays the harmonic ambiguities that are a feature of his later works and of, for that matter, most of the great musical works of the 19th century.

These four sonatas were played with a full and rich range of pianism that continually complemented this great music: Bright, strong, pulsating quick movements. Pensive, subtle, sensitive and lyrical, slow movements. Sparkling and generous dance movements. And through it all such true musicianship and style.

Only the last movement of the Sonata, Op. 27, No. 2, Moonlight, was less than it might have been. It is a dramatic movement that displays contrasting tempi and moods. It seemed a bit less fleet than I would have expected after the previous playing.

A satisfied audience was treated to one encore. It was the third prelude from Bach's Well Tempered Clavier, Book One, a brief, breezy and most effective encore.

MORE REMARKABLE piano playing was heard Saturday at Sunset Center. Prize-winning performer Jeffrey Swann played the Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor with the San Jose Youth Symphony under Eugene Stoia.

Swann has a touch that reminds me of Emil Gilels, and he is clearly a talent to watch. Like Gilels, Swann has a sweet and lyrical style that is positively non-percussive. This is not to say that the power and drama are less than they should be. Swann played the famous concerto with flair and subtlety, with sure and solid technique, and with a marvelous sensitivity to both detail and grand design. As his career blooms, there is every reason to expect it to ripen and become more comprehensive, though it is in excellent shape for such a young artist.

After the concert Swann seemed weary beyond his years. He told me he hated the rigors of preparing for and playing in the big competitions like the Van Cliburn in which he recently won the bronze prize. These competitions are a necessary evil to ambitious young players; they must seem more like a meat market than an exercise of art.

Swann got very fine support from the San Jose Youth Symphony. This is a marvelously developed ensemble that is sponsored by the San Jose Symphony. It gave a first rate performance of Debussy's Dances sacree et profane, featuring a very enviable string ensemble and excellent harp playing by Deborah Hansen-Conant. Some minor ensemble problems marred an otherwise dramatic and colorful reading of Stokowski's arrangement of Bach's Tocatta and Fugue in D minor. Conductor Stoia provided clear, efficient, but uninspired direction, though the fine ensemble in general and its very clean intonation remain a tribute to his leadership.

ATTENDANCE AT THE second cast performance of Hidden Valley's Madame Butterfly Sunday afternoon brought to mind several of the production's felicities that I had overlooked in last week's review.

But, first, the new cast. Actually the only changes were in Butterfly, sung by Marion Vernet Moore; Pinkerton, sung by Carlos Gueits-Bonilla; and Kate Pinkerton, sung by Christina Dahlin. Moore's Butterfly is not as imposing as that of Rebecca Cook. It is not as dramatic and strong and gives us a more fragile and vulnerable character. Also, by contrast, the tragic impact is shifted more to the music than to the character. Moore's voice and acting both warmed during the performance. She has a lovely soprano that is on the grow. A couple of high notes were a bit under-supported and the voice was a little inconsistent. But still it was a fine character, a fine performance, and beautiful singing.

The tenor of Carlos Gueits-Bonilla is a narrow sound and does not conceal the effort he makes in the higher tessitura. Though the voice was well organized through much of the performance, I kept feeling that it was too young and green for the demands of this opera. Gueits-Bonilla did not portray a very convincing stage presence as Pinkerton. But, of course, Puccini's music can carry a host of rough edges. The Butterfly-Pinkerton love duet in act one rose, with the support of the fine orchestra, to an intensity that was moving and beautiful.

The effect of this new pair of principals changed the balance of things considerably. Richard Haile as Sharpless was dramatically more equal here and his voice, now not overwhelmed by the bigger singing of Cook and tenor Eichorn shone forth as a rich and beautiful instrument.

The orchestra played better than before, but a few entrances suffered ragged ensemble. James Shallenberger, the concertmaster, played a gorgeous obligato in the act one duet. The chorus was very well presented. Its appearance at Butterfly's entrance was musically and visually ideal. There was too much vibrato in the Humming Chorus, making the piece less ethereal.

Jenkins drops out of Carmel race

JAMES L. JENKINS, 34, a candidate for a four-year seat in the March 7 Carmel City Council elections, withdrew from the race Tuesday, two weeks after he filed.

Jenkins, owner of a data-processing firm in Monterey, cited "additional burdens" on his business and family as his reasons for dropping from the race.

The departure of Jenkins leaves three candidates vying for two four-year terms. Incumbent Mike Brown; Howard Brunn, a businessman active in the Old Carmel residents' lobby; and Planning Commission Chairman Dorothea Roberts will battle for the two seats.

"I encourage the other candidates to strive to maintain honest, fair and impartial relations with our residential and business community," he said.

Jenkins, a four-year Carmel resident and president of Cypress Computer Corp. of Monterey, said he still hopes to serve the Carmel community in whatever ways he can.

"I will be heard from again," Jenkins promised, noting his interest to serve on a city commission, preferably the Planning Commission.

"An appointment to the Planning Commission would give me a better understanding of the workings of city government," Jenkins said.

Two candidates filed for the single two-year City Council term on the ballot. Incumbent Helen Arnold, an appointed city councilman, and Dr. Francis Herrick, a retired college professor, will vie for the two-year term.

Play review

Plot of 'The Knack' is a hard one to swallow

By BARBARA MOUNTREY

THE TROUBLE with establishing a reputation for excellence is that one is then obliged to maintain it. Any lapse from high standards is likely to be construed as failure. The Knack, now playing at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre, is an example of this problem. It is not terrible; it just is not as good as anything else that has been done at that theater.

The fault lies primarily with the play, which is dated and, in places, offensive. Surely no one now believes, if any but a few louts ever did, that a woman wants to get raped. Yet the character who states this, Tolen, is supposed to be the one with the knack for seducing women. As played by Alexey Lopukhin, he is suave in the way that prep school boys used to strive for. He wears a tweed jacket, looks down his nose at the others and suggestively fondles his pipe and tobacco pouch. It's an accurate portrayal, yet the result is hard to swallow.

Far more appealing is the high-energy Tom, with his Dadaesque humor, played with great exuberance by Ross Rhodes, and even the naive Colin, portrayed by Tony Mariano, who has unreasonably beautiful cheekbones and a very winning shy quality.

As Nancy, the girl who comes in the window while looking for the YWCA, Deirdre Moore is charming and lively. She conveys both her attraction to and her more reasonable distrust of Tolen with great naturalness.

DAN GOTCH'S direction keeps the action going at all times, with a great deal of business with a bed and an unseen clutter of furniture stacked in the hall. The actors frequently enter Bill Lewis's simple set through a window, outside which Tolen's string of women passes.

They are an attractive and capable group; one can only wish them a more favorable vehicle for displaying their talents next time.

One of the advantages of seeing the show is that you will have your seat for the cabaret, for which the house fills to overflowing with the audience and performers from every other show in the area. The program varies, but if you are lucky, you will get a foretaste of Man of La Mancha, which will star Bruce Tuthill.

The Knack is on stage Thursday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Drama about French family opens Friday

La Parisienne, Henry Becque's drama of a model French family living in obvious contradiction to its stated values, will open Friday, Jan. 20, at the Forest Theater-in-the-Ground, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. The play will be staged Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through Feb. 19. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

The Staff Players production will star Miriam Shaw as Clothilde, the charming and calculating epitome of hypocrisy who does what she does because she must and whose strength guarantees her survival.

Bob Faul plays LaFont, Clothilde's suspicious lover; Steve Dirks is DuMésnil, her trusting husband; Adam Lebec is her other lover; and Cathy Thaler is Adele, Clothilde's personal maid.

The Staff Players are accomplished graduates, parents, teaching assistants and staff of the Children's Experimental Theater who perform a variety of theater classics throughout the season for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the CET.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children. Reservations are advised because the theater is small. For reservations or more information, phone 624-1531.

Elitism in the arts is a misnomer

By RICHARD TYLER

Director, Sunset Community and Cultural Center

AMERICAN SOCIETY over the past two decades has experienced a rapid expansion of its institutions, activities and audiences in the performing arts. At the same time, the problems of maintaining this rate of growth, or even of consolidating the resources and structures attained, are clearly enormous and complex. It is heartening that in recent years, agencies of federal, state and municipal governments have begun to add modest but significant resources to the private patronage, individual or organized, which in American history has helped to establish and preserve institutions in music, theater and dance.

The importance of the arts to the American society is buried deep in the question of basic human values. We are aware of the often-discussed pragmatic values of the arts. But to us, the performing arts interpret to a man or a woman his or her own experience of life. The arts allow a society to perceive itself, to express itself, to examine and celebrate human existence. In an era when many other institutions have been severely questioned, the arts may be a rare means of perceiving the real world, as throughout the centuries they have proved not only the most moving, but also the most enduring records of humanity.

The arts in America are often attacked as elitist. We consider them elitist in the best sense of the word, as a nation's best which can be shared by all. The creation and performance of a work of art deserves the highest standards and intrinsically art is, indeed, the product of choice. While each of the performing arts may appeal to a particular segment of the citizenry, taken together they appeal to a broad spectrum of people.

It is to our advantage that the community is aware and protective of its cultural heritage. It is our duty to insure the performance of the highest standards and to use the property as a center of community endeavor and artistic activity.

BRIDGE CONTINUES to flourish at Sunset Center. A duplicate game is available each Tuesday starting at 10 a.m. If you do not have a partner, do not hesitate to attend, for one will be found for you. Bring a sandwich for lunch as the game usually lasts until 2 or 3 p.m. Coffee is available.

ON WEDNESDAY, Feb. 8, at 1 p.m. in Room 10, the first in a series of six lessons about the art of bonsai will be conducted. This class will be taught by Colonel Kenneth B. Burns, well known in the area for his skill and knowledge of bonsai techniques. Seeding, cuttings and nursery collecting will be included in the course as well as a field trip to see Col. Burns's collection of over 400 bonsai at his home in Pacific Grove. A maximum of 15 students will be accepted for the course. The fee is $15. Call 624-3996 to register.

TODAY, THE Brown Bag Cinema features Picasso - His Work, His Life and Friends, at 1:30 p.m. in the theater. It is preceded by a brown bag lunch (bring your sandwich; we supply the coffee) at 12:30 p.m.

TONIGHT AND Friday at 8:15 p.m., Explorama presents Africa: Beyond the Zambezi, produced and narrated in person by Ron Shanin. Shanin camped in the African bush for four years during the production of this new film documentary of East and Central Africa. Highlights include the strange two-toed Wadoma natives, the hilarious escapades of two pet eagles as they cope with life on safari and unusual pygmy tribes. For ticket information, call Julia Marlowe at 624-9446.

ON TUESDAY at 8 p.m. in the theater, Greenpeace will present a panel discussion on its efforts to save the whale and the harp seals. The principal speaker will be Ken Norris, a professor at UC Santa Cruz. He has done a great deal of research on dolphins and will discuss dolphin intelligence and management. There will be three other panelists to help Greenpeace raise funds for their nonviolent confrontation with the Japanese whalers. They have a similar project in the North Atlantic with organizational offices throughout the world. Greenpeace has proved the most dramatic and effective conservation group in publicizing efforts to curb the killing of whales. Donations at the door will be $2.50 for general admission and $2 for students and senior citizens. For further information, call 649-1150, ext. 326.

THE SANDY Shoes Festival is on in Fort Pierce, Fla., through Jan. 30.

Trip to museum set for Jan. 26

The Carmel Foundation will sponsor a tour to the Oakland Museum on Thursday, Jan. 26. The tour is open to the public.

Delayed lights force postponement of ceremony

The official renaming of the north field parking lot at Sunset Center has been tentatively scheduled in mid-February. The Carmel City Council renamed it Art Holman Memorial Field on Jan. 3.

The exact date of the ceremony has not been set pending arrival and completion of the field's new $22,810 lighting system. It is used as an athletic field at night during parts of the year.

The system was to have been installed in November, but a delayed parts shipment forced postponement, said City Building Inspector Fred Cunningham.

Art Holman was a music and physical education instructor at the former Sunset School for 14 years. He died in 1961.

Auditions

Since November, Councilman Mike Brown has urged that the field be renamed. He proposed that it be named for Holman.

The renaming was approved on a 4-0 vote. Councilman Bernard Anderson was absent and did not vote.

A backer of the name change, Police Chief William Ellis, speaking before the vote, said Holman played a large part in "helping to develop youngsters in the community."

There was some opposition, however.

The field has been used as a parking lot since the school was purchased by the city in 1964. It holds more than 150 cars.

Councilman David Hughes suggested the name could be misleading. He said the name "Holman" probably will be confused with the department store in Pacific Grove.

"It might sound like we are advertising for a department store," Hughes said.

Albert Eisner, publisher of the Pine Cone, questioned the "appropriateness" of renaming a parking lot for a respected community figure.

"Some of us hope it may be used for nonparking purposes," remarked Mayor Gunnar Norberg.

A dog catcher with a heart

Pamela Mason's canine clients

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

PEOPLE IN Carmel complain about stray dogs like New Yorkers gripe about muggings.

Of the city's 600 licensed dogs and the countless ones without licenses, surely one or two stray where they shouldn't every day.

Carmel doesn't let a sleeping dog lie — that is, when it is unlicensed or running stray downtown. In 1968, the city hired a part-time "animal control" officer. Today it is a fulltime position filled by Pamela Mason, a 35-year-old Carmel Valley resident.

A former dog trainer and dinances, said the officer.

The response from residents is mostly cordial, Mason said. Citations are usually issued only to repeat offenders, she added.

On more than one occasion, the dog warden has loaned leashes to tourists with dogs in the business district.

MISS MASON is employed by the Carmel Police Department, although she is not a sworn officer. Her uniform consists of a denim jacket, jeans, gloves and a badge.

The small truck she drives during working hours has a cage, but she said she has car racing team member, Miss Mason has worked for the city since November.

"I don't really catch the dogs, they catch me," commented the pig-tailed dog catcher.

Some dogs that are "repeat offenders" know her so well, they run up to her truck and jump in on their own accord, she said.

Who complains the loudest about loose dogs and their droppings?

Storekeepers and senior citizens, answers the animal warden.

DOGS CAN run virtually free in most of Carmel, she noted. Restrictions, however, are placed on dogs in three locales: the business district (leash required), the beach (owner must be present) and Devendorf Park (no dogs allowed).

Fido is free to roam just about anywhere in the city's residential district — as long as he doesn't leave droppings or make too much noise.

If he does, or if your dog is caught roaming the business never used it.

"The animals I find ride up in the front seat with me," she explained.

There is no good way to catch an animal, she said. Dog biscuits seldom work. Chasing dogs is hopeless. "They can just sense when it's an animal control officer," she said.

A recent encounter with a deaf dog that never heard her approaching left her with a minor bite on the hand.

The smaller dogs are the toughest to catch. She says they also are the meanest.

After a dog is caught, she immediately checks for a license. If she cannot contact the owner, the dog is turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) on the Monterey-Salinas Highway.

Owners have five days to pick up their dogs before the dogs are offered for adoption.

Dogs not adopted are killed with a sodium phenobarbital injection, according to John Tiernan, the SPCA executive director.

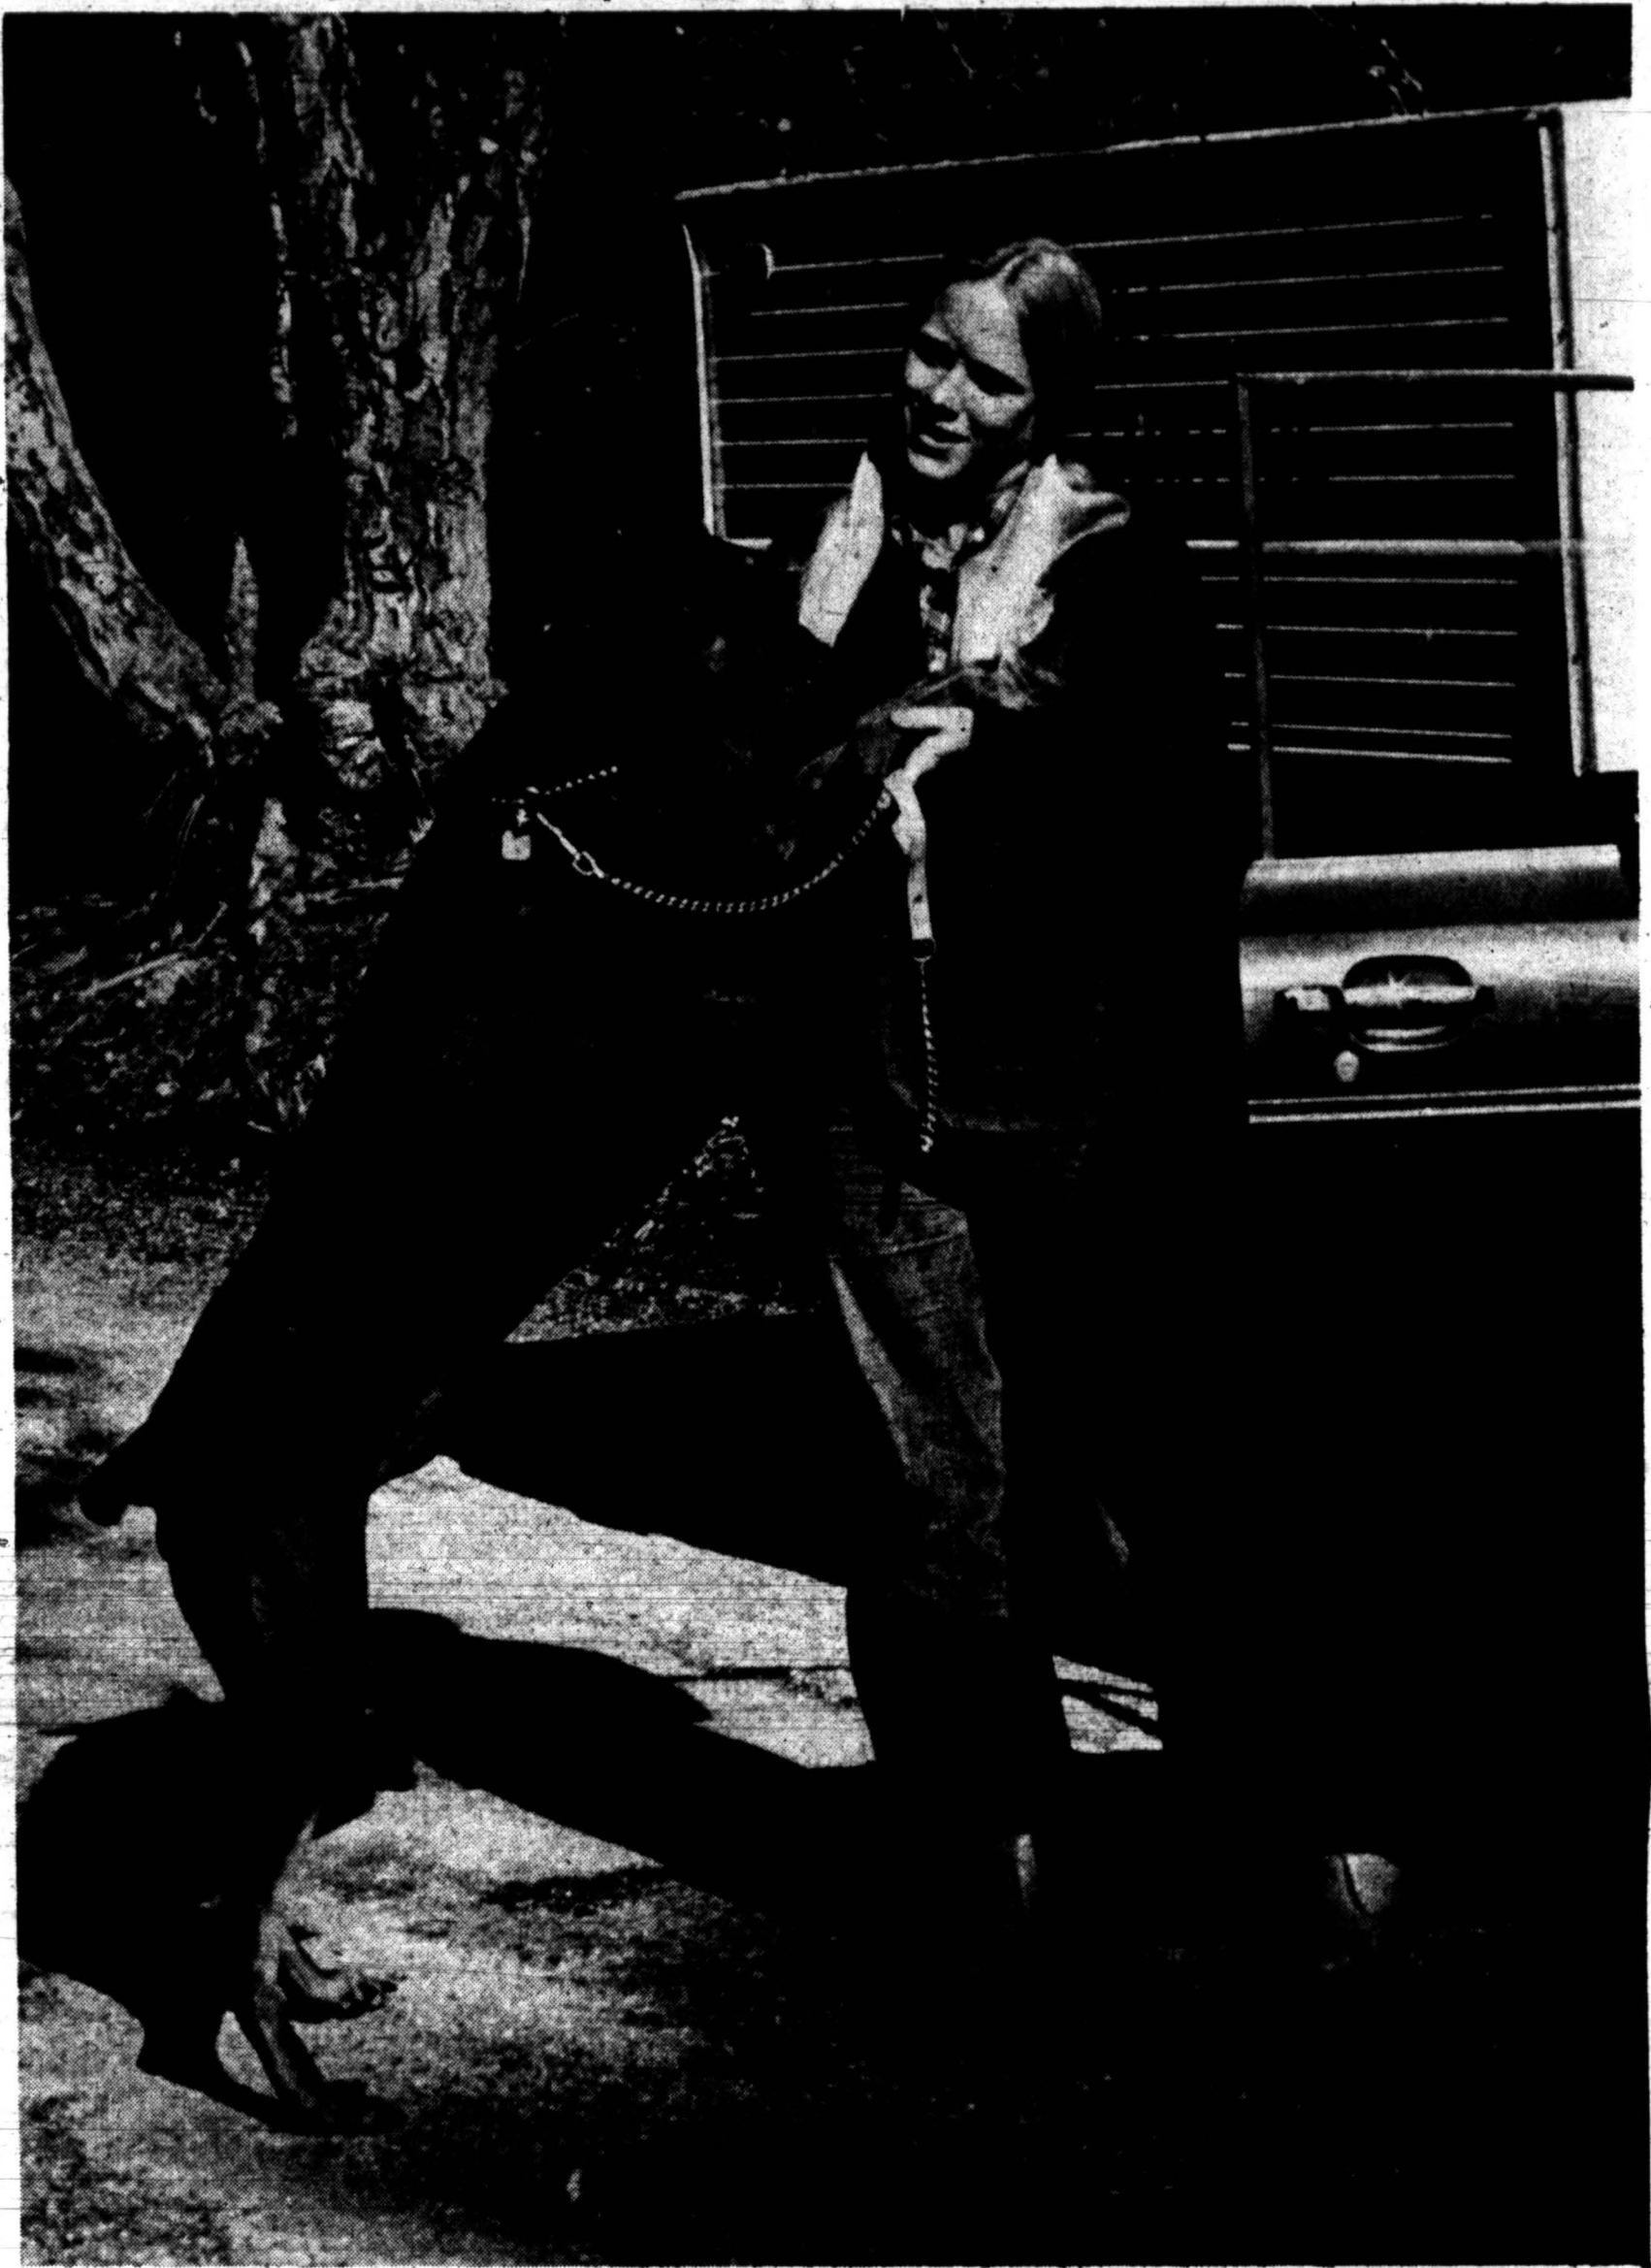

"I'm not trying to catch dogs, I'm trying to protect them," commented Miss Mason.

The worst part of her job, she said, is turning puppies and kittens over to the dog pound.

She said cats should be licensed just like dogs. That would limit the number of stray cats, she contended.

Because she is the animal control officer for the city, she has also been asked to aid an injured sea lion, and even to remove a rat from a resident's lawn.

Miss Mason has worked as a bartender in Florida and also as an official timer for the Ecurie Escargot racing team, a touring team of professional Porsche car racers.

district without a leash, you could face a $35 fine.

All citations require that the owner appear in person before a court judge. Repeat citations could result in even higher fines, under Monterey County laws.

Dog licenses can be purchased at the City Hall for $5. For dogs that are not neutered, the fee is $10.

Carmel also has a law limiting the number of dogs to four in a single residence. Miss Mason said she has never enforced that law.

Garbage collectors file for $1.25-a-month rate hike

A requested $1.25-a-month hike on garbage pickup fees goes to a hearing Tuesday, Feb. 6, before the Carmel City Council. If approved, the rate would be increased 38 per cent, from $3.25 to $4.50 a month.

John Roscelli Corp., the franchised refuse collection firm, has said it will lose more than $57,000 this year if the rate hike is denied.

The firm has a 10-year franchise that expires in 1981. It received its last rate increase in January 1976.

Financial statements from the company are being obtained by the City Hall staff, said Jack Collins, the city administrator. He also said the city's private auditing firm, Haskins and Sells, will present an analysis of the reported garbage company losses prior to the Feb. 6 hearing.

Rising costs of doing business prompted the Roscelli firm to seek the rate hike. In a report filed at City Hall, it said the cost of gasoline and fees for dumping refuse have risen sharply. Premiums for liability coverage have jumped 233 per cent in the past three years and Worker's Compensation costs have doubled in the same period, the firm stated.

Said Elio Chiappe, president of the corporation, "The rate increase will put us on a base where at least we won't be losing money." He said he was "optimistic" about obtaining the new hike in fees. The report said the Roscelli firm has lost money on its Carmel operations for the past two years.

In the report, the refuse collection firm also said it has few of the large and more lucrative commercial accounts that it might find in neighboring cities. "Narrow, twisting and congested" city streets compound the problems of collecting garbage in Carmel, it added.

The company has collected garbage in Carmel for more than 60 years, Chiappe said. It has 2,600 household accounts.

Textbook author talks about children's math problems

"Teaching Arithmetic Once and for All" is the topic of a lecture by Dr. Robert Wirtz scheduled tonight at Carmelo School on Carmel Valley Road. His talk starts at 7:30 p.m. in the library.

Wirtz lives in Carmel Valley and is an author of school textbooks in mathematics. His lecture is cosponsored by the Carmelo Parent Club and the school Early Childhood Education program.

"For some years," Wirtz said, "good teachers have been baffled by the question, 'Why do some kids get arithmetic and other kids don't?' In spite of a movement toward excellence in teaching, there has remained a gap between a child's grasp of manipulative arithmetic (concrete experience) and his understanding of pencil and paper computation (abstraction). As children progress through the grades, the gap becomes ever wider."

The public is invited to attend.

YOUR RAIN GUTTER RUST-OUT PROBLEMS

HUDELSON & MYERS PRESENT THEIR RAIN GUTTER "FACTORY ON WHEELS"

Pictured here is our remarkable new machine making continuous rain gutters on a job in Pebble Beach. It's the only machine of its kind on the entire Monterey Peninsula.

This amazing equipment can roll out seamless strips of gutter any length up to 980 feet! No seams mean better appearance, better draining, easier cleaning, no joint leakage.

What's more, the material is long-lasting aluminum which will not rust, with a fine protective coating of bonderized paint (like an enamel, applied under high pressure) both inside and out.

Expensive? Not at all! The cost for this extraordinary rain gutter is comparable to ordinary types of galvanized metal gutters which rust out in very few years.

So give us a call. Our skilled craftsmen will quickly and expertly produce and install this great new gutter right on the job for you. Remember... it's aluminum and will not rust.

Serve the Scot tea at 19th hole

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

IT HAS BEEN said the reason 18 holes of golf are played instead of 16 or 20 is that the old time Scot took along a fifth of Scotch and as he reached each tee he would take a wee nip. By the time he arrived at the 18th, the bottle was empty so he headed for Pebble Club House, better known as the "19th hole."

We trust this year's golfers will not get teed off if we suggest a high tea instead, as they do in the British Isles. This type of gathering is where tea is the first and main consideration — very expertly brewed pot of tea, be it oolong, darjeeling or brisk English breakfast tea.

A winter tea is one we should all adopt instead of just serving cocktails, although a mild Scotch and soda is permissible for the golfers when they appear. This is more warming to everyone's "cockles" if it happens in front of blazing logs in a fireplace. This is a warming experience.

Scotland, where golf first started, has produced its own shortbread and scones. They can be purchased at the Royal Danish Pastry in Carmel. For those who are dieting after the holidays, prepare Cucumber Rounds:

WITH A MEDIUM-SIZED biscuit cutter, slice unpeeled cucumbers to be placed on lightly buttered sweet creamery white bread. Pass the salt and so to each his or her own.

My good friend Marion Stevens, a Carmel resident who loves it here, contributes Watercress Roll:

Wash and drain watercress, removing small inside tendrils for garnish; save stems from the rest and chop finely. Soften sweet butter, adding lemon juice to taste. Add chopped cress, spreading on thinly sliced bread from which crusts have been removed. Roll each and fasten with toothpicks. Wrap in foil or Saran Wrap and chill. Serve with cress sprigs as decor.

Mushroom Filling for Mini Puffs

Saute in butter some finely minced mushrooms (fresh or canned), add mayonnaise, salt and onion powder and chopped chives to taste. Either make small round open face sandwiches or the following dainty Mini Puffs: Half a cup boiling water, ¼ cup salad oil, a small amount of salt, ½ cup sifted flour, 2 eggs unbeaten. Heat oven to 400 degrees. Mix the above items well and drop by teaspoonfuls on unoled cookie sheet. Bake about 20 minutes until lightly puffed and browned. Cool and split with fingers just at serving and only enough to add the filling without removing tops.

This makes 36 puffs. These also are delightful when filled with chicken, crab or tuna salad using plenty of finely minced celery hearts. We suggest buying cup cakes so that everything is finger food. Of course, just plain bread and butter is the easiest of all.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

OUTER BOARD WHITE HOME BOARD

12 11 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

OUTER BOARD BLACK HOME BOARD

Black rolls 3-2. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Of course, the obvious play would be to bear off a man from the 5-point. However, by this time you will have come to realize that the "obvious" move is not necessarily the correct move.

It is a basic principle of backgammon that it is unsound to "train" your men — that is, to stack them up on only a few points. A sound game when bearing off is one that is diversified, with men on as many points in your home board as possible.

Obviously then, Black can improve his position somewhat by using the 3 to bear a man off his heavily stacked 3-point. That leaves the question of how best to deploy the 2.

Black should use it to play a man to an unoccupied point. That gives two options: a man from the 6-point to the 4-point; or, from the 3-point to the 1-point.

Black is thin on both the 6- and 5-points. Taking a man from the 6-point to the 4-point will strip that point even further while leaving four men on the 3-point. As the game progresses, Black could find that he is "wasting" more and more pips by using high numbers to bear off men from the 3-point.

Black's game looks much better, and should play much better, by using the 2 to bring a man from the 3-point to the 1-point. It leaves him with a relatively smooth position. And if Black does roll a 4, he can use it profitably to bring a man from his 6-point to the barren 2-point.

LOCAL SUBDIVISION RULES ADOPTED

The rules that are to govern the plan of design for all future subdivisions in Carmel, or within three miles of the town's limits, were adopted at a meeting of the new City Planning Commission.

The only point arousing prolonged discussion was the requirement that lots must have a minimum area of 7,200 feet.

A suggestion that street corners be round instead of square drew criticism from Mayor Jordan, who said that the danger of accidents to pedestrians would be increased.

Her lecture was based upon six years' study of the nature and intelligence of anthropoid apes made by a German professor.

She said apes, like humans, have a rich emotional life. She also noted apes form strong friendships and strong dislikes.

I have been asked as city attorney, to reply to the editorial in your paper concerning the new ordinance permitting motels in the residential district on a use permit. You ask whether or not new motels will arise in the R-1 District as a result of this ordinance.

The ordinance itself says, "There shall be no further expansion in either area or use. . . ."

Only existing motels in the R-1 District can or will obtain a use permit. I am reasonably certain that no further expansion in the R-1 District will be allowed.

Padres beat Gonzales; hosts RLS Friday night

PLAYING WITHOUT two starters for the second game in a row, the Carmel High Padres still coasted to a 51-36 victory over the Gonzales High Spartans Friday in front of a capacity crowd in the Padre gymnasium.

Forward Tom Frincke (12.2 points per game average) had the flu and center Will Wilkinson (7.7 points per game average) still was sidelined by the sprained ankle he suffered two weeks ago in a game against Hollister. Carmel trailed 6-2 early in the Gonzales game, but came back to lead 10-8 after the first quarter. After the teams traded baskets, Gonzales went six minutes without scoring a point as the Padres took a 19-10 lead. Gonzales scored the last four points of the half to narrow the gap to 19-14.

The Spartans, who hit only seven of 28 field goal attempts in the first half, could manage but one field goal in 10 attempts in the third quarter before suffering through a five-for-20 fourth quarter for a total of 13-for-58 (22.4 per cent) in the game. The Padres hit 20 of 48 for 41.7 per cent.

Gonzales managed only three points in the third quarter and the points all were made at the 2:59 mark when Stan Brusa made a three-point play. By then, the Padres led 27-14 and the game was all but over.

JOHN FRINCKE, the Padres' leading scorer with a 12.9 points per game average, scored 15 points to lead all scorers. Dave Stevenson scored 13 points while John Lucido and Jim Irwin scored nine and seven points, respectively. Stevenson hauled in 14 rebounds and Frincke pulled down 11. Jody Mendoza scored 10 points to lead the Spartan scorers.

The Padres made a clean sweep of the evening by winning the junior varsity game 51-36 and defeating the Spartans in the freshman contest 42-29. Adam Sherburne scored 18 points and Art Strum added 12 to lead the Padre JVs, while Dave Salas scored 14 for Gonzales. Greg Raynes tallied 21 points to pace the Carmel freshmen.

The Padres traveled to Palma Tuesday and they host the Robert Louis Stevenson Pirates Friday night in the Carmel gymnasium. Game times are 8 p.m. for the varsity game, 6:30 p.m. for the JV game and the freshmen contest begins at 5 p.m.

Lecture on healing

Christian healing will be emphasized in a free lecture by Ruth Elizabeth Jenks at Sunset Auditorium next Thursday at noon.

The lecture, "A New Beginning," is sponsored by the First Church of Christ Scientist, Carmel.

Mrs. Jenks points out that her topic is not just physical healing. "A careful study of those healed by the Master," she says, "shows that something far greater frequently accompanied their physical freedom. It was the spiritualization of a life or the regeneration of a character."

As Mrs. Jenks sees it, an awareness of God's healing presence "is possible to each one of us."

Obituaries

Valley resident dead at 81

Esther T. Jones Whitcomb, 81, died Friday at her home in Carmel Valley.

Born on Aug. 13, 1896, in Santa Barbara, she had lived in Carmel Valley for 44 years. She was a third-generation Californian; her grandfather owned a hotel in Santa Barbara and operated the first transit system there.

In 1939, Mrs. Whitcomb became the owner of Beverly Terrace, at San Carlos and Fourth, one of the first "cottage courts" in Carmel. She also was a self-employed real estate agent in the area for 41 years.

Mrs. Whitcomb was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Carmel, and the Carmel Valley Women's Club. She was a registered nurse and served as a Gray Lady with the American Red Cross in wartime.

Survivors include a daughter, Phyllis J. Crockett, of the Valley; a son, Arthur F. Jones, of Morgan Hill; two sisters, Helen Forsythe, of Arroyo Grande, and Mabel Philbrick, of Redwood City; and six grandchildren.

Cremation, at the Little Chapel by the Sea in Pacific Grove, was private, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

John Hall dies in his home

John D. Hall, of Carmel, died at his home Wednesday, Jan. 11, after a long illness.

A native of Ohio, in 1970 Hall moved to Carmel, where he became the owner of the Castle, a boutique. More recently, he was with Luce Meat Co., of Monterey.

He is survived by his widow, Nancy C. Hall, of Carmel; two sons, David M. Hall, of Utica, Penn., and John M. Hall, of Chicago; a daughter and son-in-law, Priscilla and Greg D'Ambrosio, of Carmel; two brothers, Richard L. Hall, of Medland, Mich., and Robert J. Hall, of Pittsburgh, Penn.; his father, John S. Memorial services were conducted Friday, Jan. 13, by the Rev. David Hill at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. Private cremation took place at the Little Chapel by the Sea, Pacific Grove.

The family has requested that any memorial contributions be made to the Cancer Recovery Project, Box 7236, Carmel, or to Community Hospital.

Elinor E. Auld dead at 66

Born Nov. 8, 1911, in Tulare, she had lived on the Peninsula for the past 15 years. She had been an active member of the American Kennel Club in Fresno, and a member of the Fresno Art Center.

Mrs. Auld is survived by a sister, Dorothy Muller, and a nephew, Gary Muller, both of whom live in Visalia.

Private funeral services were conducted at Mission Mortuary on Saturday.

Illness claims life of Mrs. Rowland

Olga M. Rowland died Friday at Community Hospital after a short illness. She was 63.

Born April 20, 1914, in Philadelphia, she had been a resident of the Peninsula for the past 15 years. At the time of her death, her home was at Dolores and Seventh in Carmel. She was a bookkeeper for Coast Counties Land Title Co.

Carmel couple donates early California relics to DLI museum

Early California history comes alive at the U.S. Army museum at the Defense Language Institute, thanks to donations by a Carmel couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Benton Scott, of 4000 Rio Rd., presented museum curator Margaret Adams with artifacts commemorating both the era when California was under Mexican rule and the Gold Rush period.

The principal contribution from the Mexican period is an ornate serape once owned by General Luis Antonio Arguello, the first Mexican governor of California, who presided in Monterey, California's first capital, in 1825.

Other artifacts include paintings of St. Francis of Assisi and San Luis Obispo; two "santos" figurines, which are altar relics; daguerreotypes, taken about 1850, of a Mexican family; and a beautifully designed leather-covered wooden chest.

Part of the Scott collection consisted of artifacts lost or abandoned by miners in the Mother Lode country in the 1850s. Articles donated to the museum included a pick, a digging claw, a ladle, a pan, an 1836 Bible, an 1856 history book, and a pair of silver-coated iron spurs. An even rarer gift was a British "bulldog" revolver used by miners.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott have collected historical memorabilia for 50 years. They acquired the Mexican relics from a close friend, Isabella Arguello, who was the great-granddaughter of Luis Antonio Arguello. The Scotts collected the miners' tools over the years.

Scott said he decided the artifacts should go to the Presidio museum because the museum had few holdings from this important period of local history.

Cooperative nursery faces closure on Friday, Jan. 27

If five additional parent-couples do not enroll in a Carmel Adult Education course, the course and the cooperative nursery school that is part of it will be closed, the director of the Tularcitos Parent Cooperative Nursery said last week.

There are 10 couples in the course, five under the minimum enrollment required for adult education courses, said the director, Dukh Niwaran Kaur Khalsa. The course is conducted under the auspices of the Carmel Unified School District.

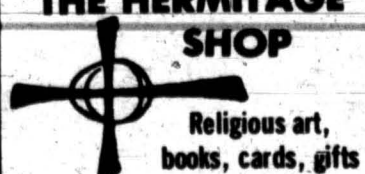

She said the enrollment number must be increased by Friday, Jan. 27, the end of the adult education semester.

There is a $15-a-month fee for parents. Enrolled parents spend five hours a week supervising at the nursery and they meet Tuesday nights for a two-hour class session.

For more information, call the school at 659-4887 or Mrs. Khalsa at 373-6227.

Troubled waters

WHEN THE rainclouds relented, spectators took up positions on the Highway 1 bridge over the river. A 35-foot tree, washed from the banks upstream, lodged under the bridge Monday night. Highway maintenance crews lifted it out, cut it into pieces and tossed them back into the rushing river.

Flood scare along the river

Photography by Del Kaller and George T. C. Smith

Low bridge

UNDER THE Highway 1 bridge, the river rose to within three feet of the top (above). A spokesman for Caltrans said the height of the flow was 10 feet. The first eight feet of markers were below the riverbed, according to Gary Saunders, the Caltrans maintenance supervisor in Salinas. The high-water mark about nine inches above the 18-foot level was recorded on Christmas Eve in 1955. Motorists parked along Carmel Valley Road (left) to watch the swollen river recklessly negotiate its curves. One onlooker said a horse had been swept away by the river, but the report could not be confirmed by the Monterey County Sheriff's Department.

New roof due at City Hall

Raindrops keep falling at City Hall, but not for long. The Carmel City Council voted Jan. 3 to grant $5,225 for emergency reroofing of the 30-year-old roof at City Hall.

"It is shot," City Administrator Jack Collins said of the decaying roof. There are visible water stains on the ceiling inside the council chambers.

C. L. Frost Co., a Monterey roofing firm, was awarded the job. The firm will replace all the roof shingles.

Funds for the reroofing will come from two sources, according to Collins. Some $2,000 will come from the City Hall maintenance and repair fund. An additional $3,225 will come out of a similar fund used to repair other city buildings.

No date for the reroofing has been set.

A SPECIAL GET-ACQUAINTED OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

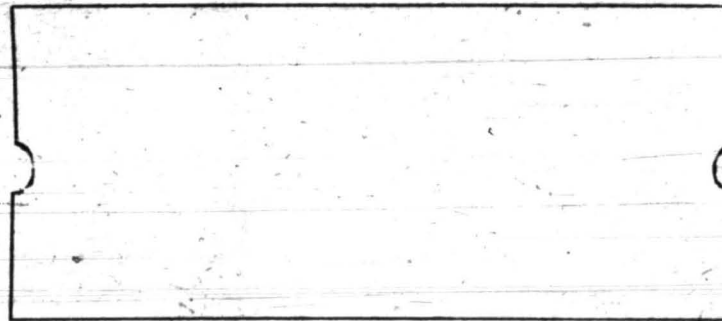

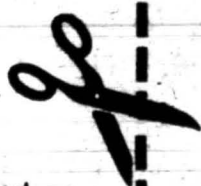

The Pine Cone is now under new ownership and new management. We are happy to be here and look forward to meeting our subscribers. Meanwhile, as a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a free want ad, every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by noon Tuesday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 20 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to refuse to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads may be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

This label is your ticket for a free ad and must appear here on any ad you turn in. Clip this label from the front page of your weekly Pine Cone.

475.04 LOCATION OF GAMES. An authorized organization shall conduct a bingo game only on property owned or leased by it, and which property is used by such organization for an office or for performance of the purposes for which the organization is organized.

However, the property owned or leased need not be used or leased exclusively by the organization.

Your own bit of wilderness

We'd have to rate this a par 3, but it plays like a 5 -- and will be when you build on it! Five miles south of Carmel, one mile below Highlands Inn, it's 350 feet above the sea and a quarter mile inland. Easily accessible, eminently buildable lot, private yet convenient, and part of a growing area. A full acre with great promise. $62,500.

Concept is shelved

Police reserve plan is risky, councilmen told

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

A MOVE to revive the Carmel police reserve program was shelved Jan. 9 by the City Council because it could make City Hall more vulnerable to liability suits. Carmel pays Worker's Compensation claims from a special city fund. It canceled its compensation insurance policy in July 1974 because the premiums were too high.

The council heard the liability warning from the city attorney, the city administrator and the police chief.

Reservists are civilian volunteers who perform support services for the police department. They are not sworn officers.

Pacific Grove started a reserve program in May. Three reserve policemen work 16 hours a month. The program has saved the city nights such as Halloween and the Fourth of July, according to Ellis. With the exception of the one technician, Ellis wants to abandon the program.

"If we are to have people dressed and acting as police officers they ought to be fully trained and experienced in police duties," Collins said to the City Council.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg disagreed. "If we can afford to have a volunteer fire department, why can't we afford volunteer police?" Norberg asked.

The city administrator scolded the mayor for comparing firemen and police. Collins said there is a greater day-to-day "peril" in the duties of policemen.

"The reserve program is an unnecessary risk," Collins said.

THE CITY has 30 volunteer firemen, according to Fire Chief Bob Updike. The chief said no "major" claims have been filed by volunteers in the past five years.

In July, the City Council allocated $3,000 for the reserve officer program. That money will carry over to next year's budget, according to the city clerk.

Councilman Helen Arnold reminded the City Council that reserve officers will need essentially the same 400 hours of training requirements as full-time officers when a new law takes effect on Jan. 1, 1979.

Few reserves could or would finish the 400 hours of training, according to Ellis.

A report dated Nov. 30, given to the chief of police by Sergeant Thomas Frazier, said the reserve program would endanger the city's self-insurance program.

Frazier based his premise on the assembly bill that stiffens the reserve officer training requirements to 400 hours. He said it "brings the question of benefit versus liability to light."

Frazier concluded that reserve officers cannot be expected to perform at the same level as professional officers.

"In addition, a wrong decision or error in judgment often means loss of criminal prosecution and civil liability for the city," Frazier said in his report.

'Wrong decision costly'

more than $1,000 a month that it would have spent for added staffing, according to John Matteson, the police chief in Pacific Grove.

Jack Collins, the Carmel city administrator, said the program would place the city in an "untenable financial position." City Attorney George Brehmer also opposed the program because of "increasing litigation across the country involving police."

THE POLICE reserve program began in Carmel in 1952 under former Police Chief Clyde Klaumann. There were five reserve officers. The program dwindled due to "lack of interest and lack of need," according to William Ellis, the present chief of police.

The city still has three reserve officers, but only one is on "active" duty, said Ellis. Stewart Hampton III, 39, has been a reserve radio technician since 1960.

Reserve officers receive 40 hours of training. Full-time police officers must complete a 400-hour training program, Ellis said.

In the past, reserve officers have been used for special events or "active"
